WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Upper level low pressure has moved onto our east, however there is some lingering moisture hanging back just west of the mountains (low clouds present this morning in and along the pass to our northwest). But we have mostly sunny skies here at the course this morning and will expect to continue that trend through the day as temperatures currently in the lower 60s will eventually end up in the lower 80s by late this afternoon. Expecting a light wind this morning to go southeast by later today, about 5 to 15 in the locally breezy areas of the course.
